Eugene Braunwald Academic Mentorship Award

Nomination Form

The purpose of this award is to identify and honor individuals whose academic careers have included a long-term record (at least 20-25 years) of successful mentoring of promising young academicians. The mentoring can be in any field of basic, population, clinical or translational research consistent with the mission of the American Heart Association, or in other academic pursuits, such as education. It should be based upon a consistent record of molding the careers of multiple individuals during a continuous academic career.

Selection Process:
The nominations will be compiled and forwarded to the AHA President-Elect and Chairman of the BOD/Chair-elect for the final selection. Further input as needed is provided by staff science leaders and from AHA volunteers such as past AHA Presidents, the Chairs of the Council Operations Committee, Committee on Scientific Sessions Planning, Scientific Publishing, Science and Clinical Lifelong Learning Committee and the Research Committee.
